Cooking for the Occupations - The campaign to end the criminalization of poverty and how you can participate in the global protest movement against economic austerity!

An inspiring presentation by Food Not Bombs co-founder Keith McHenry and video about the movement in Africa

Most people would elect to end hunger and poverty but many of the people running for office have another agenda, cutting social services while transferring our tax dollars to wealthy military contractors and their corporate friends. While elected officials cut social services like unemployment insurance, food stamps, education, health care and other basic necessities they pass laws against the poor and evict the occupations seeking to defend the 99%.

Food Not Bombs is responding to this crisis by recovering, preparing and sharing vegan meals and groceries with the hungry in nearly 1,000 communities. This presentation will inspire you and your friends to join the Food Not Bombs movement and help our dedicated volunteers organize, implement and feed the global campaign to end hunger and poverty. Copies of Keith's new book "Hungry for Peace" will be available at the presentation.
